

Sully is home to two top-notch schools where students receive the educational nurture and extra-curricular opportunities to excel in academics and in life. The same pride demonstrated in the quality of work found in the local businesses is evident in the level of education provided for students at the community schools. The Lynnville-Sully Community School District offers excellence in public education for students in kindergarten through the twelfth grade, and Sully Christian School provides high quality, private Christian education for children in kindergarten through eighth grade. Lynnville-Sully is located on the northeast side of town across from the Christian Reformed Church while Sully Christian School sits in the southeast corner of town.
